

General Discussion Questions on Corruption

How does corruption intersect with other themes like power, greed, morality, or justice in the work?

Are there characters who resist corruption? How are they depicted in contrast to the corrupt characters?

How does corruption affect different social classes or groups within the story?

Does literature offer a moral lesson about corruption, or is it more observational and critical?

Does the narrative present corruption as a cyclical issue or as something that can be overcome?