

General Discussion Questions on Suspicion

How does suspicion influence the way characters perceive truth versus reality?

Can suspicion ever serve as a protective force, or does it always lead to destruction?

How does the protagonist's perception of others change as suspicion grows?

What literary devices (symbols, tone, setting) reinforce the theme of mistrust?

How does the resolution (or lack of it) affect the reader's trust in the narrator?